“ Scott Robert Grimshaw. Damn man, gone too soon! I had been looking to try and contact you to see how things had been for you through the years. I'm so sorry I was unable to do this before you're passing.

I knew Scott and his brothers pretty well when we were younger. Scott and I went to school together and became good friends. What I remember about him the most was his easy going personality and laughter. We'd start joking around and sometimes laugh until we had tears running down our faces, stomachs sore from gut-wrenching laughter. Even with all the joking and teen antics, I believe Scott was the first of the guys I knew to get serious about life. When many of us were partying and not setting goals, he was working a job and had a nice Camaro. He knew how to achieve what he wanted and worked hard to get it. Remember how strong he got when he was lifting weights? His pythons made Hulk Hogan's nervous. There are so many memories I have of Scott that I couldn't begin to post them all here to share. The last time I talked to Scott and his brothers was at least 20 years ago or so. So much has changed since those days and I'm saddened that I won't be able to catch up with an old friend. The world lost a cool dude. Condolences to the Grimshaw family & friends.
